About The Bronx

The Bronx, New York City's northernmost borough, is a community defined by its remarkable energy and resilience. Home to an estimated 1.36 million residents, with 55% identifying as Hispanic, 29% as Black, and a rich mix of other backgrounds woven throughout. Like the rest of New York, it has a small business-based economy, with two-thirds of Bronx-based businesses having fewer than five employees.

Zecca Mirror Glass & Architectural Metal

Rafael Correa

Rafael Correa came to New York from his native Puerto Rico and, after graduating from school, spent over 15 years working at Zecca Glass & Manufacturing, learning the business from the ground up.

When the original owner decided to retire and suggested Rafael take over, Rafael saw it as an opportunity to not only preserve the company - known for delivering high quality glass installation and replacement services for both residential and commercial clients - but also to guide it into its next phase of growth.

In 2024, he received an Accompany Capital SBA Community Advantage loan to support the acquisition and provide long-term working capital for operational support and future expansion. That financing ensured a seamless transition and operational continuity grounded in his deep understanding of the company's work, clients, and standards.

Zecca Glass now proudly serves developers and homeowners with expert and customized glass solutions.
